

THE BONE

Whenever Henry Wilt took the dog for a walk, or, to be more accurate, when the dog took him, or, to be exact, when Mrs. Wilt told them both to go and take themselves out of the house so she could do her yoga exercises, he always took the same route. In fact the dog followed the route and Wilt followed the dog.

When they were in the mid of the route the dog started barking and as he became crazy, he started running to the inside of the forest and dragged Henry with him.

When Henry finally stopped the dog, he realized that they were lost, but the dog continued smelling the floor like he was looking for something. When he got tired they both returned home.

The next day Henry couldn't stop thinking about the previous days and he decided to go for a walk with the dog to see what was he looking for, and like the other times, the dog turned crazy and started running to the same direction, he started to smell all the floor but, again, Henry got tired and turned his way back home. The dog cried all night.

The morning after, Henry did his routine; he went to work, did the laundry, prepared dinner for his wife, etc. But meanwhile the dog continued crying so he decided to took him for a walk to see what was happening. They ended in the same place where they went in the previous days, but this time, the dog started digging out something and he exhumed a bone, but not a person one, a toy bone.

Henry started getting angry for the drama that generated the dog for that bone but in the way back home he convinced himself that "it was a dog, and dogs don't think with logic, calm down". Later, once at home, he went to the kitchen to eat something, when he looked at the window, he saw the dog covering up the toy bone, he got disconcerted but he gave it the least importance.

Finally, the morning after, Henry went outside to see where the dog buried his bone and saw a little tiny plant coming outside of the hole where the bone was.

One month later, the plant that was growing in the toy bone hole became a precious unique flower that Henry, Mrs. Wilt and the dog loved.
